ELEMENTARY STRAND

Multimodal Composition in the K-5 Writing Workshop

In each session, participants will examine explicit curriculum design methods, tangible writing tools, and instructional strategies specific to narrative, research and information, and opinion and argument writing.

December 2nd: Story Making
January 20th: Building Texts that Teach
March 31st: Composing Opinions and Arguments

MIDDLE SCHOOL STRAND

Multimodal Composition in the Middle School Writing Workshop

These sessions will challenge writing teachers to pursue and elevate the complexity of students' creative and academic writing. Each session will leave participants equipped to coach critical thinking, multimodal composition, and an iterative process, in service to more sophisticated thinking, learning, and written work.

November 18th: Defining Structure and Form and Seeking Conventionality
January 27th: Strategies for Coaching Critical and Metaphorical Thinking and Writing
April 14th: Lifting the Quality of Revision and Editing

HIGH SCHOOL STRAND

Multimodal Composition in High School Writing Classrooms

Participants in these sessions will learn how to leverage important constraints and help writers distinguish formulaic writing from coherent, sophisticated, and authentically influential work. All will leave with explicit strategies that move writers past mere replication in order to generate compelling compositions in every content area.

December 9th: Equipping Writers to Assume a Professional Posture
February 3rd: Tinkering with Structure and Using Conventions for Effect
April 21st: Elevating Complexity and Scaffolding with Careful Intention

All meetings will take place on Zoom from 3:30-4:30pm. Join us here: <https://zoom.us/j/6057369794>
